

Abstract of the Disclosure:

Most everybody uses deck of cards and plays “cards”. Using the “card playing know-how” of the believers, this game offers the opportunity to play cards to have fun but while doing so, people will effortlessly learn and memorize Bible’s passages, stories and ethics. The relaxation of a game setting replaces the transcendental stressful environment of either a Sunday school or a Bible study. People will be snacking, jocking, standing, sitting, laughing etc. They will not be studying the Bible, but playing, and yet, unconsciously embedding the Bible in their brain. Because they will not be trying to learn anything. But everything they will be interacting with will sink in their memory. Almost like the same principle that television uses to push commercials into people’s brain. By having fun interacting with the cards, their messages will find their way in the brain of the players.